Office of the Attorney General
SUMMARY FOR LIHEAP VENDOR TRAINING

The Office of the Attorney General has Rules about the sale of heating fuels from October 15 – April 30th (www.maine.gov/sos/cec/rules/26/chaps26.htm). If a customer has money for a delivery, you cannot deny them a delivery during this time. The Attorney General has an easy to understand Consumer Law Guide on this issue (www.maine.gov/tools/whatsnew/attach.php?id=27939&an=1).

You cannot refuse a delivery if:
- The customer owes you money;
- They have a guaranteed payment for the delivery (cash, LIHEAP, etc.);
- You regularly serve that area; and
- They request at least 20 gallons.

You can:
- Charge an emergency delivery fee if you tell the customer in advance.
- Charge a delivery surcharge in certain circumstances.
- Require the customer to pay in the office rather than COD.

Unscheduled (Emergency) Deliveries
- You are delivering on a day not normally scheduled for that area.
- There is no cap on an emergency delivery fee, but you must tell the customer of the fee in advance.
- You can also impose a minimum delivery requirement.
- Remember, if this is an established customer, you cannot treat them differently. If you do not charge established customers a delivery surcharge, minimum delivery requirement, or different price; treat this customer the same.

Delivery Surcharges are only allowed if:
- They order less than 50% of their tank’s capacity or 100 gallons, whichever is less.
- The surcharge cannot be more than $20.00.
- You inform the customer of this charge in advance of delivery.

Prepaid Contracts
- You must first obtain financial protection to ensure you can deliver the product at the guaranteed price, which include contracts with suppliers with specific language, surety bonds equal to at least 50% paid by prepaid customers, or a letter of credit equal to 100% paid by those customers (10 M.R.S. § 1110).
- Dealers who offer prepaid contracts must register with the Department of Professional and Financial Regulation by June 30.

Coal Vendors Must provide a receipt with your name/address, consumer name/address, date and quantity delivered, price and description of the type of coal sold.
